

PIRATE PARTY

What is the Pirate Party?

Like many of you, we are fed up with mainstream politics. We are ready to be the alternative. You may have heard of our sister parties in Iceland, Germany or Sweden. Like them, we stand for a political system fit for the 21st century - a society where all receive their fair share. Supporting digital rights, personal freedoms and holding government to account.

It's easy to feel powerless in the UK today. Many find the online world is a place to reclaim some freedom. But here too, we are increasingly watched and restricted. We're here to say that it doesn't have to be like that.

We are passionate about technology - and believe that it should be used to benefit everyone. Whereas other parties appear to be afraid of the future - we embrace it.

In the modern world, if you stand up for copyright reform - you get called a Pirate. If you stand up for an end to Drug Patents - you get called a Pirate. If you stand up for open access to knowledge for all on the Internet - you get called a Pirate.

That's why we're proud to be running for election as Pirates. We believe that being a Pirate means that you are independantly minded, and independantly minded politicians are what we need right now.
